POsing WITH HER DAUGHTER THE DUCHESS OF KENT TALKS EXCLUSIVELY TO HELLO!
A group of African children thrilled an audience in the stylish Il Bottaccio restaurant in London's Belgravia as they sang and danced at a lunch held in aid of ASAP. The charity supports local solutions to the continent's problems, such as children orphaned by HIV/AIDS. The 200 invitees - who helped raise more than £110,000 - enjoyed a simple lunch of sushi and sandwiches as the charity's founder Priscilla Higham talked about some of its community projects and introduced the children and their companions.
