London society gathered to enjoy a sparkling lunch in London’s fashionable Kensington, but it was all in aid of a good cause. The VIPs flocked to the Louise T Blouin Foundation to raise funds for African Solutions to African Problems (ASAP), which helps children affected by HIV/AIDS in South Africa. Guests, including Eric Clapton’s wife Melia McEnery, enjoyed sushi donated by Pret A Manger and Gelupo ice creams as ASAP founder Priscilla Higham served up an inspiring talk about the charity’s life-saving work.
