Sixty years at the first appearance of the Cannes Film Festival, British actress Jean Seberg is being remembered. A personal tribute was given by her husband, who met her in Paris recently as the presentation line for her new film in Cannes last week. The actress was found dead in her Paris hotel room on May 20, 1979. She had been suffering from depression and had attempted suicide two days earlier.

Three lions: No, three layers for Cup warm-up

By Matt Law

ENGLAND's football fans will be hoping they can come through the pain of World Cup heartbreak to lift the country up.

But manager Roy Hodgson is raising his chances of leading the country to glory.

He presented his team on Tuesday, revealing three layers for Cup warm-up, which will be worn under the main kit.

"We've got three layers," Hodgson said.

"It's all about comfort and performance."

The layers will be worn over the main kit to help the players feel more comfortable.

"We've been thinking about it for a while," Hodgson added.

"It's important for the players to feel comfortable and confident when they're on the pitch."
End of lecture as students study professors' notes online

By Graeme Flock, Education Editor

TRAJECTORY — University students are being overwhelmed by heavy-study workloads, with many not able to take time off to relax, according to a new report.

The report, which was compiled by 500 students across 10 universities, found that students were spending an average of 10 hours a day studying, with many working more than 12 hours a week.

"We found that students are often working long hours and not getting enough rest," said report author Sarah Johnson. "The study showed that students are often stressed and feeling overwhelmed by their workload.

"Many students are working more than they can handle, and this is affecting their mental health," she added. "We need to do more to support students and give them the resources they need to manage their workload.

Caught behind Boycott and Perry backwash

Georgia Reesch, the former England batsman, has returned to the game as a coach. She was appointed as the coach of the women's cricket team in 2018.

"I am pleased to be back in the game," Reesch said. "I am looking forward to working with the players and helping them improve their skills.

"I have been involved with cricket for many years and I am excited to be back in the game," she added.

One of the main challenges for Reesch is to help the players develop their skills and become more competitive. She hopes to create a positive and supportive environment for the team to thrive.

"I believe that every player has the potential to be better," Reesch said. "I will be working with the players to help them achieve their goals and reach their full potential.

"I am looking forward to working with the players and helping them achieve their dreams," she added.

Prince Charles, Ed.

JOE'S BLOPS STOP FRONT-LINE DRUGS

"We are taking action to prevent the use of drugs," prince Charles said. "We need to make sure that people understand the dangers of drug use and are aware of the consequences.

"We need to work together to prevent the use of drugs," he added. "We need to support those who are struggling with addiction and provide them with the help they need.

"We need to work together to prevent the use of drugs," he concluded.